

Four Families

(Inspired by Terry Pratchett's 'The Fifth Elephant')

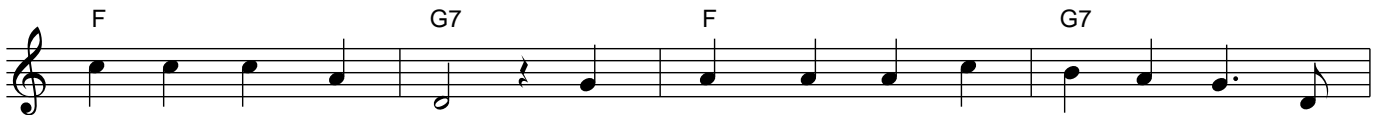

Phillip Mills

1. They think past times were bet - ter than the
 2. (Black) hors - es draw a pure black hearse up 3. (Your) fa - ther runs down vil - la - gers and 4. (One) ne - phew's name is I - gor and cur - rent thous - and years. They'll ri - ot 'bout a choice of King, 'bout to a cas - tle gate. In - side, a bat mo - tif is all that's eats them if they're caught. Your mo - ther seems more civ - i - lized; she'd dad's an I - gor too. It's eas - y to tell them a - part; the bread or length of beard. They've start - ed wars a - mong the clans, fought used to dec - o - rate. Though they've gi - ven up their taste for ra - ther scheme and plot. One bro - ther is a hair - y chap and stitch - es show who's who. Ei - ther one would lend a hand, if ov - er fat or gold. All that's a - greed on an - y - thing's it's blood, it's pow - er still. Makes them man - i - pu - late their neigh - bors vi - cious in his play. An - o - ther's gone some saf - er place and that is what you seek. Per - haps you'd like a kid - ney more; it bet - ter when it's old. Rel - a - tives. You come from stub - born for an e - vil thrill. Rel - a - tives. Though you damn your barks at sheep for pay. Rel - a - tives. It's some - thing you can't was fresh just last week. Rel - a - tives. You must ad - mit it's stock. You have to love your fam - i - ly, al - though they're thick as rock. luck, You have to love your fam - i - ly, e - ven when they suck. fight: You have to love your fam - i - ly, e - ven when they bite. true: You have to love your fam - i - ly, be - cause they're part of

Black
 Your
 One
 you!